Navigating New Travel Options

The travel industry continues to evolve. New ways to find transportation or a place to stay are showing up all the time. While there are certainly advantages to these newer methods, business travellers need to be wary of options that aren't as consistent across various locations as traditional hotels and car rental companies.

SMART THERMOSTAT

It can be hard to decide what temperature to set your home at when you leave for a trip. You don't want to return to a cold home, but you also don't want waste energy to heat rooms you aren't occupying.

A smart thermostat allows you to control your home's temperature from your phone. You can turn your heating (or cooling) down when you leave for your trip and turn it back on while you're waiting for your luggage so you return to a comfortable home. Even if you forget, many smart thermostats have an Auto-Away feature which adjusts the temperature when you're detects you're not at home. If you're worried about your home dropping to a dangerously low temperature, there are also safety alerts that send notifications to your phone when your home gets too cold, (or too hot).
